came to Roanoke in 1960 and is now employed by Beatrice Foods.

He has appeared on local television and at clubs. He also sang for a while at the Barn Dinner Theatre. Other credits include performances with Arthur Smith's group when it played in Roanoke and occasional singing dates with the Clifton Sisters of Roanoke. The latter group helped back Love up on the recordings, as did King Edward IV of WSLR-Radio, playing lead guitar, and Little Leroy, formerly of WSLR.

Love appears frequently on the Ch. 15 series, "Kaleidoscope."

"Chuck" is Charles Levelace, Jr., and lived next door to Journal Office until about ten years ago.

CHRISTMAS AT DENMAR

On Thursday Dec. 22, a Christmas party was held at Denmar State Hospital for the patients. Stacks of gifts were on hand from friends as well as various organizations. Santa Claus was there too, and visited every patient and presented the gifts.

shown from left to right: Mr. Joseph Hodgson, Commissioner of State Institutions; Mr. Lee Ruckman, business manager of the hospital; Dr. J. K. Hamrick, superintendent; Dr. J. W. Hamilton, staff physician; and Miss Pansy Harrison, superintendent of nurses. The patients in the picture were unidentified.

"MIB" ANDERSON HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Traveling north on Eighth Avenue last Friday evening, Melvin Anderson was seriously injured when he failed to stop due to the icy street and slid into Eighth Street in the path of the car driven by Earl Hause. The Anderson car crashed into a telephone pole. Mr. Anderson was taken to the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital and then removed to the University Hospital at Morgantown where surgery was performed to remove crushed pieces of bone. His condition was reported as good on Monday and he was resting comfortably. Riding in the Anderson car were Mrs. Cecil Underwood, Mrs. Edith VanReenan and son, Ronnie. Ronnie sustained a broken arm and was able to leave the hospital Tuesday. The two women were unhurt. Mr. Hause was riding alone.

ACCIDENT ON KENNISON

On Friday, December 22, while returning to Marlinton, Ernest Weiford, Jr., driving his brother, Arnold's station wagon wrecked on Kennison Mountain. Mr. Weiford was thought to be seriously injured internally and was rushed to Morgantown to the University Hospital. However, doctors found no serious damage and he returned home on Sunday. Mrs. James Dunn and others riding with him were unhurt. The car was badly damaged.

NEW DOCTOR

Pocahontas County's doctor-patient ratio improved this week with the arrival of Dr. Luther E. Rexrode, who opened his office in the Marlinton Clinic on Monday. Dr. Rexrode is a native of Sugar Grove, Pendleton County, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rexrode. He was graduated from West Virginia University School of Pharmacy, and then took his medical training at Baylor University College of Medicine, Houston, Texas, in 1952. His intern work was done in Newport News, Virginia. He has practiced medicine in Franklin for nine years.

Dr. Rexrode has rented the Lee Ruckman home and his wife, who was Myrtle Eye of Franklin, and daughter, Sandy Jo, 15, will move here after school is out for the summer. An older daughter is married, Mrs. Bobby Jack (Sue Carol) Sites.

B & I Apparel, Inc., is a New York firm and is employing 57 workers and are now making approximately 4500 pairs of slacks per week. Nearly 50 machines are used in the operation. The company is growing and they expect to produce six or seven thousand pairs a week at full capacity.

The plant is located at the old Fair Grounds now owned by Pocahontas Producers. They are in the process of tearing down old buildings and building new ones to suit their requirements.

SHEEP MEETING PLANNED
 An educational meeting for sheepmen will be held at the Elk Mountain of Pocahontas County and Southern Randolph County has set for Thursday, February 8, at 7:30 in Slaty Fork Methodist Church. Sheep producers are encouraged to attend. The program will include presentations and discussion. Dr. Stauffer of Allegheny High School will be Project Veterinarian. Bob Hommer, West Virginia Dept. of Agriculture, will be Sheep Specialist. Sam Tuckwille of the Eastern Producers Market will be in attendance.

The meeting is an interesting one for sheepmen aware of the new identification case which has caused losses in the Panhandle and coming our way. The next meeting will be a section of the county will be a purchase of the much later.

Boy Scout Camp Is Now Debt Free

Buckskin Boy Scout Council's camp construction debt notes last week made a small fire, but it warmed the council executive board members.

Sam Hill, chairman of the camp construction committee, gave his panel's report and the burning of the notes highlighted the report of the $250,000 program.

The "camp fire" was at the Quarrier Diner in Charleston.

Hill reported to the council that pledges received have enabled the council to pay all camp debts.

He explained that remaining pledges to the construction program will be used for pay-as-you-go construction.

Buckskin Reservation, located northeast of Marlinton, is rated the finest in the state and one of the best Boy Scout camps east of the Mississippi River, according to the council.

The council conducted a financial drive in its nine-county area in 1958 to raise the funds for the camp construction program.

Since the camp opened in Pocahontas County in 1960, more than 3,000 boys have used Buckskin Reservation. The council said this represents an increase of 50 per cent in camp attendance.

Wild boars prove to be elusive

Johnny Carson has always said hogs are smarter than they're given credit for being, and hog hunters would tend to agree.

Those who participate in the wild boar season in Southern West Virginia invariably come away with a healthy respect for the hogs' saavy.

During the 1988 season, held last week, the weather was good the first two days, but hunters still didn't do well.

DNR wildlife biologist Tom Dotson believes the answer is the steep, rugged terrain that most hunters simply don't penetrate, and the hogs' tendency to take advantage of this.

Dotson cited one hog, fitted by the DNR with a radio collar for tracking purposes, that moved into a dense hillside thicket on opening morning Thursday and stayed there until Saturday evening.

"I suspect that when a crowd moves in, they simply go hide," he said admiringly.

The biggest hog of the 26 killed during the three days was a 343-pounder (on the hoof) that was killed by Freeland Covert of Madison. Several others weighed over 200 pounds.

Dotson isn't complaining about the hogs' proclivity to hide in rough terrain. "That's why they're a trophy animal," he said.

The kill was way down compared to last year's 63.

Why, a caller wants to know, is Sunday hunting not permitted in West Virginia. This question comes up every year in the Legislature, and the simple answer is that those who live in rural areas are opposed for various reasons, and, whether those reasons are well-grounded or misguided, the legislative lack of support reflects this sentiment.

My own feeling is that Sunday hunting would add too many days to various seasons that are long enough already.

Last week I mentioned legendary turkey man Wayne Bailey, bringing back some fond memories to Marlinton businessman Harvey Galford, who as a teenager worked for Wayne in the DNR turkey trapping project in the 1960s.

This project is generally credited with starting the spread of turkeys statewide.

"I was 16 years old and worked one summer with Wayne," said Galford. "Once he taught me how to trap them, his son Emmitt and I would trap in one place and Wayne in another."

Their biggest single catch was 25 turkeys, although, Galford said, that was only a fraction of the flock that was in the clearing when they fired the net.

They encountered rattlesnakes occasionally, and one day Galford "killed" a rattler and put it in a paper bag to give to Emmitt. When they got home and Emmitt dumped the snake out, it wasn't dead

Galford remembers Wayne as a man who figuratively and literally wrote the book on turkeys. "If you worked with Wayne," he said, "you had to live turkeys. His dedication and total attention to the business at hand taught me valuable lessons that have stayed with me."

Galford is owner of the Treasure Chest sportswear shop in Marlinton. Bailey is retired and lives in Milton, N.C.

80th BIRTHDAY

A surprise birthday party was given for Miss Edgar Thomas on Thursday, January 18, at the Marlinton United Methodist Church by Regena Rhea and Dorothy Clutter.

The table was gaily decorated with pink and white and centered with a large open book cake with the inscription "Life is an open book" Thanks for letting us be a part of a chapter in your life - your friends." Miss Edgar was presented with a lovely white orchid and instead of gifts she was given a money tree.

Sixty-two well-wishers attended the party.

Miss Edgar was born January 19, 1893, at Hot Spriggs, Va., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Thomas, & came to Marlinton fifty-three years ago. She is well known and loved by all and her greatest joy is doing something for someone else.
